“ I was privileged to know Mr. Dickey back from 1965 to around 1970. My grandparents lived across the street from and his wife and two sons. I have to say if it were not for Mr. Dickey, I wouldn't have become so interested in electronics. He taught me to solder as well as to read a resistor color code and how to troubleshoot an electronic circuit. Mr. Dickey son, Clim Dickey, we would get together every summer and learn something new in electronics at the time. I remember the time he took myself and his son's to Cal Poly's computer lab to show off one of the largest card reader computer's of the time. I will never forget it, it took up the whole basement of this building. Unfortunately I lost touch with Mr. Dickey, around 1971 as I was living in Santa Maria and was close to graduating from high school and working at a local TV repair shop. Those were the days. I was sad to hear of his death in 2018. My condolences to his sons and family. He was a great influence on my life. Thanks, Rocky Neihold

“ I attended CalPoly in Electronic engineering from 1963 to 1965. That curriculum also rounded out with some Electrical classes. Those informative classes were taught by Professor Dickey who was always very thorough (and demanding) in his presentations. He was totally dedicated to getting the understanding across. I appreciate having studied under him.

I am sorry to his family in their loss and ask the Lord to comfort you in this hour. God's blessings to you.
